ADDRESS IS VIEWED AS LEADERSHIP BID

Georgia Chief Executive Calls for "Return to Principles of Democratic Party Platform."

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—A wholesale assault on New Deal recovery efforts was coupled by Governor Talmadge, of Georgia, tonight with demands for a return to the democratic platform principles he charged the Roosevelt administration with violating.

Describing the $4,880,000 work-relief fund "given to the president" as the "darkest blot on the pages of history," Talmadge made over the radio what many considered a vigorous bid for leadership of "old line democrats" in the 1936 presidential campaign.

The Georgian, who ranks among administration critics with Senator Long, earlier had greeted the Louisianian on the senate floor during debate on the cash bonus issue.

Separately, both had agreed that agriculture's salvation rested upon a return to the sabbatical year of Biblical times—a farm holiday every seventh year.

No Close Harmony.
But Long quickly claimed credit for urging modern application of the law of Moses by telling newsmen "I was the originator of this program." And further dispelling possibilities of a Long-Talmadge team-up against the administration in 1936, Long said he and Talmadge were as far apart on labor and taxation policies as they were close together on agriculture.

"But we are good friends," the senator added.

Talmadge's radio address left little of the New Deal unscathed. He ridiculed federal agencies, jested about Washington's expanded population and said abolition of NRA and "all activities of the government maintaining and operating a business" would halve the relief rolls in 60 days.

Meanwhile, the first direct public challenge of the governor's "New Deal" revolt to come from within the Georgia congressional delegation appeared imminent as it became known Representative Cox had asked for radio time to answer him.

Immediate response, however, came

Council Raps Talmadge For Roosevelt Attack

City Fathers Adopt Resolution Condemning "Misguided Politicians" Who Criticise President and National Administration.

A resolution condemning Governor Talmadge for his attacks on President Roosevelt and the national administration was adopted yesterday by city council after brief but heated debate.

The resolution, sponsored by Alderman J. Charlie Murphy, was approved by a voce vota after the debate was precipitated by Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, who sought to table it. Alderman Gilliam was one of Governor Talmadge's two opponents for re-election in the September primary last year.

Other important actions of council at the session yesterday included:

Meeting of council on the petition for a special election on Mayor Key's proposal to establish municipal liquor stores.

Walker Re-elected.

Re-election of Lloyd Walker as city purchasing agent over John Townley, his former assistant, by the narrow margin of one vote, the count being 20 to 19.

Elect of William H. Joyner, well-known Southern railway clerk, to the post of alderman from the first ward made vacant last week by the death of Alderman Guy Coley.

Recification of a report by the board of fire masters absolving the fire department from blame for the spread of the recent fire at the Warren Company refrigerator plant and criticism of the company for maintaining all failed fire fighting apparatus.

Motorcycle Ban Asked.

Referring of a proposal by four aldermen to abolish the motorcycle division of the police department and equip the present motorcycle squad

ITALY MOBILIZES MORE SOLDIERS

Italian Troops in Africa Expected To Reach 200,000.

ROME, May 7.—(AP)—Italy called more thousands of troops today to bear arms in east Africa as the collective voice of the chamber of deputies endorsed vital New Deal proposals today emerged a fresh determination by Roosevelt followers to press the social security program toward the statute books.

Second thoughts obviously eased many minds of apprehension lest the high court's invalidation of the rail-way pension act threatened the security bill—and possibly NRA also—with a label of unconstitutionality.

Some disagreed, but prevailing opinion from the White House to the capitol apparently crystallized in holding the security bill would not be affected because it is based primarily on constitutional grounds other than those which condemned the railway retirement act.

Orders for the mobilization of new divisions of fighting men, as revealed in an official communiqué, are expected to provide a "powerful instrument of war."

The best informed quarters said Italy's forces already in the colonies, beset by troublesome incidents with the Ethiopian government, now total

TALMADGE FLAYS RELIEF PROGRAM

Georgia Chief Executive Charges Betrayal of Party Platform.

from democratic and republican leaders.

Representative O'Connor, of New York, a democratic house leader, said:

"The governor of Georgia has taken on quite a contract to displace Will Rogers as America's comedian. The governor says, complaining of all plans of the New Deal: 'If this system is right, everything I have been taught from the cradle to now is wrong.' I can well believe that."

Officials of the Columbia Broadcasting Company said tonight that the speech was a "sustaining feature on our time."

The subject of the address, the company said, was "America, Wake Up."

"I call on Americans to return to the principles of the democratic party platform," he said in a coast-to-coast radio speech broadcast from here at 10 p.m. (eastern standard time). These principles, he said, will be the basis of the next race.

"The great fight in America is Americanism versus NRA-ism.

NRA-ism is the brain trustees' doctrine. The man to lead the banner will realize that a party platform is sacred and that the constitution of the United States is greater than any man or set of men in this Union."

Talmadge pointed out that administration funds for relief were and pictured representatives of business as "fea-dering what is going to happen, and trying to honestly protect their business."

The policy of relief, he said, has grown more than any other activity in the Hoover administration inaugurated it.

A Department of Commerce investigation also was to start tonight.

Death came to a fifth victim of the crash today. Mrs. William Kaplan, Hollywood, died after an operation to repair her fractured spine.

Others who died in the crash were Senator Bronson Cutting, of New Mexico; Pilot Harvey Bolton, Co-Pilot Kenneth Green and Miss Jeanne Anne Hillis, all of Kansas City.

The jurors heard testimony which indicated that radio equipment of the new $90,000 plane was not in working order when Pilot Bolton brought it down to Kansas City from Albuquerque.

Under "Albuquerque to Texas City" leg, entry in the log said: "Radio transmitter out. Two-way receiver very weak. Starter button sticks in. Right engine requires two inches more manifold pressure."

Charles Fowler, former pilot and a member of the jury, questioned witnesses at length. Today's inquest was to study the death of Senator Cutting, whose body was sent to Washington at noon.

At the Samaritan hospital, physicians worked with blood transfusions to save the lives of Paul Wing and C. B. Drew, a passenger, who remained the most seriously injured. Only Major D. C. Mesh, a member of a T. W. A. pilot of Kansas City, escaped unharmed. The others being treated were Mrs. Dora Metzger, Port Washington, N. Y., and her 15-month-old daughter, Dorothy; William Kaplan, husband of the fifth victim; Henry Sharpe, Richard Wallen and of Hollywood. With Wing and Drew, they were en route to Annapolis to begin production of a motion picture at the United States Naval Academy.

A plane containing relatives of the Hollywood injured arrived in Macon today.

SULZBERGER WILL HEAD THE NEW YORK TIMES

NEW YORK, May 7.—(UPI)—Arthur Hays Sulzberger was elected publisher of the New York Times and president of the New York Times Company at a meeting today of its directorate.

Creation of the post of general manager was authorized by the directors, and Colonel Julius Ochs Adler was chosen to fill it. Colonel Adler remains vice president and treasurer of the company.

The vacancy on the board created by the death of Adolph S. Ochs was filled by the appointment of Godfrey N. Welsh, secretary of the New York Times Company.

Colonel Adler was elected publisher and president of the Times Printing Company, which publishes the Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times and in which Mr. Ochs held the controlling interest. Adolph Shelby Ochs of Chattanooga continues as general manager of the printing company, and Colonel Adler will be in "Oakland" cemetery.

Grant Park Lodge No. 604, F. & A. M., of which he was an active member, will have charge of the graveside services.

WARNING IS ISSUED ON BOND LISTINGS

Public and private corporations were informed yesterday by John B. Wilson, secretary of state, that a $500 penalty exists for failure to register.

For many years, he said, only a limited number of certain kinds of corporations have registered their bonds.

The will not be my purpose to assess the penalty unless failure to register appears to be intentional or deliberate," he added. The law affects school districts, municipalities, counties and private corporations.

HOSPITALS TO HONOR NIGHTINGALE BIRTHDAY

Honoring the birthday of Florence Nightingale, Atlanta hospitals will hold open house Sunday. The public is invited to visit the institutions and inspect the improvements made during the past year, according to a statement issued yesterday by J. B. Franklin, superintendent of Grady Hospital.

The open house will be held from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and will be general in hospitals throughout the city, Mr. Franklin said.

ONE SLAIN, TWO SHOT IN SAN ANTONIO AFFRAY

SAN ANTONIO, May 7.—(UPI)—J. B. Crum, secretary-treasurer of Mac-Manus-Crum Motor Company, was killed, and Ray Shelton, vice president and general manager, was wounded critically in a shooting in the company's private office this afternoon.

J. J. Rhine, Jr., office manager, who was near by, received a flesh wound in the left arm.

Sulzberger was born in New York City, September 12, 1891, attended public schools and was graduated from

Public Votes To Select Winners Of Special Flower Show Prizes

In addition to the formal judging through the ballots and regardless of the opinions of the official judges, customers at such events as the public will have an opportunity to select favorite displays during Atlanta's second annual flower show to be given Thursday and Friday at 671 Peachtree street.

Mrs. Jesse Draper, chairman of the show, announced Tuesday night that ballots will be given with every ticket purchased, enabling the holder to vote for his choice of the best garden display, the best still life, the best luncheon garden and the best luncheon table. Prizes will be awarded to the winners chosen in each class by the ballots.

Mrs. Louise Calhoun has been named chairman of the committee to conduct this contest. Working with her are Mrs. George Adair, Jr., Mrs. William Mann, Miss Miriam Fleming, Mrs. William Nixon and Mrs. Stanton Pickens. Miss Calhoun announced that the prizes will be awarded strictly in accord with the desires of the public as expressed

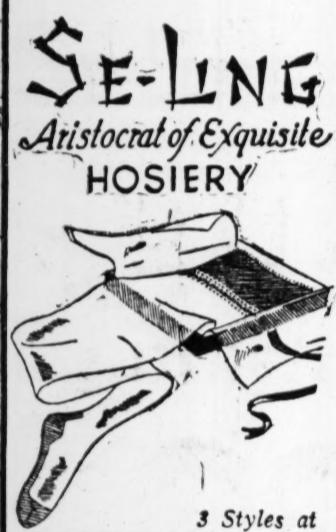

The question of economic status has once more raised its ugly head, so to speak, in this crow matter. While we are on the subject I would like to make a few points as a basis of policy. In the first place, I don't like to have to evaluate wild life in terms of dollars and cents. I would be glad never to have to consider any animal in its relationship to agriculture or other industry. Still, that is an idle dream, for we humans are flooding the continent with ourselves and wild life must stand or fall by

SEARCH WIDENED FOR REV. SENTELL

Police Asked To Aid in Hunt for Missing Baptist Pastor.

Search for the Rev. W. M. Sentell, prominent College Park minister who disappeared Sunday a short time after resigning as pastor of the First Baptist church of College Park, is being concentrated in Alabama and Tennessee, members of the family admitted last night.

Fulton county and College Park police are engaged in an intensive search for the missing pastor who, it is feared, may have suffered a nervous breakdown.

The Rev. Sentell tendered his resignation as pastor of the First Baptist church Sunday evening, unknown to members of his family. He then returned home, packed a suitcase, entered his automobile and drove away.

The Rev. Howard Sentell, pastor of the Peachtree Baptist church and a son of the missing man, officially reported his disappearance to the Fulton county police yesterday morning. He scouted the theory that his father had met with foul play, but said that the elder Sentell had been concerned recently about his health.

Members of the family thought that the clergymen, who had worked with Mr. More, were Ed S. Center Jr., general agricultural agent, A. & W. Railroad, first vice president; Dr. W. Frank Wells, second vice president; James D. Bazemore, Fulton county deputy sheriff, third vice president; A. M. Moore, managing editor of the Atlanta Paper Company, secretary and treasurer; Carlos M. Hemperly, president of A. C. Hemperly & Son, district trustee, and the Rev. W. L. Foley, pastor of the East Point Presbyterian church, chaplain.

The Rev. Sentell is drawing the line a bit too fine. It means that we are putting the penalty on the bird's appetite for fruit and lack of distinction between what is wild and what is cultivated. The same thing applies to the crows. If his rations are poor and willful, I should be habitual and widespread. I should never be interested in a crow-control program. On the other hand, if the crows were as rare as some other birds I would fight for his right to eat any and every crop, bar none. That is being unreasonable on the other extreme. I believe it is the proper extreme. There are times when the safe middle course leads to nothing but grief.

In the crow problem we have a bird that is extremely common. It is clever and sagacious. It is so smart that extraordinarily clever means will have to be adopted for its control. What then? I am not sure. I am not sure. It will have to be at least a statewide program, however, in order to be effective, and if it were put on nationally, it would be of great benefit. Ruthless as it might seem to be, I would put on the program at the earliest season in order to guarantee that it will have to be a sustained drive for two or three years before effective inroads on the crow population can be made. Then the bird is sensible and reduce intensive activity to the point of keeping the crow population stable. There is no point whatever in driving the crows to a minimum, but the part of wisdom is to hold them below the population level at which they are detrimental to crops.

IRON FIRM HEAD BUYS 4 FUR COATS WHILE ON RELIEF

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—After three bankruptcies in the iron-works business, Adolph Weiss testified today, he went on the relief pay roll and soon was able to buy his family four coats, automobiles and a trip to the country.

In addition to obtaining a $45-a-week relief job for himself, as well as for some of his relatives, Weiss said he contracted with the parks department for the use of his "bankrupt" shop to turn out playground equipment.

Following him on the stand, attorney Commissioner Paul Blanchard testified that Weiss, 46, had received work tickets for equipment hire totaling $48,000, "while Mr. Weiss himself values this equipment at approximately $14,000, and he may be overestimating the value of his own equipment."

With Weiss' testimony drew pounds of laughter from the spectators, said that while he was receiving $45 and his son $33 from the parks department his family was living in a seven-room apartment at a rental of $75 a month.

"Did you buy your wife a $450 fur coat?" Lloyd P. Stryker, committee counsel, asked.

"Sure I did," he replied. "I bought four fur coats. One of them was for $375 and another one for $150."

"And did you buy an automobile?"

"Sure, I bought two automobiles," he said. "He paid $1,645 for one, he said, and $830 for the other."

The witness testified that he had sent his family on a 10-day trip to Lakewood, N. J., at a cost of $511.

Fair, Mild Weather For Next Few Days

Atlanta is due for a period of fair, mild weather and skies today will be clear, according to George W. Mindling, meteorologist here.

Temperatures will be fair for the next several days, while the mercury will range up around 75 degrees in the afternoon. An incipient heat wave, scheduled for yesterday, failed to materialize, although the Mississippi valley reported high readings.

Atlanta experienced .66 inches of rainfall Monday afternoon and night, the forecaster said.

500 Under Arrest In Philippine Revolt

MANILA, May 8.—(AP)—Arrests from the sardista uprising mounted to 500 today as the constabulary was kept busy tracing the revolutionaries from Cavite that a plot to assassinate Manuel Quezon, president of the insular senate, and other Filipino leaders had been uncovered.

Acting Governor Joseph R. Hayes meanwhile appointed a committee of four army officers, all members of his staff, to investigate whether the sardista movement, which has gained adherents from Philippine scouts, who are Filipino members of the United States army.

SENATE APPROVES POSTAL PAY BILL

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—The Senate today approved the $800,000 treasury-postoffice appropriation bill sent it to the White House.

The approval of the conference report in striking off a proposed $2,000,000 subsidy for Pacific ocean air mail routes sought by Senator McAdoo.

It left intact the compromise agreement providing back pay to some 1,200 treasury employees, most of them in the alcohol control division, who had worked salaryless since December 1.

Fortune Lost to Georgia Through Bone Dry Statute

Repeal Failure Would Leave State One of Nation's Major Moonshine Areas, Says Official.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, May 7.—If Georgia fails to join the ranks of repeal Wednesday, when the prohibition referendum is held, the state will be left as one of the three "moonshining centers" of the country with consequent loss of an important revenue, added officials, who have been making an intensive study of illicit manufacture and consumption on liquor in dry territory.

The alcohol tax unit of the Treasury Department, which exercises wide authority over illegal manufacture and sale of intoxicants, added: "Georgia is one of 12 states now in the dry column in which more than 50 per cent of all illicit stills have been seized since repeal, December 5, 1933."

Leader in Moonshining.

"Today Georgia is one of the leading states in moonshining," said a government official whose daily work keeps him in intimate contact with liquor consumption in Georgia. "The state is one of the principal high spots in a gradually decreasing terrain of dry territory. Georgia has always been a good hard-drinking state in spite of her bone-dry laws and at present we

CAIN RIDES SCOW ON TRIAL CRUISE; INCREASES CASH

Prospects for passage to Europe became brighter as Arthur Cain, globe trotter on a hitch hiking tour around the world, makes new acquaintances on the New York waterfront. He tells about it in this account for readers of The Constitution.

BY ARTHUR CAIN.

I dropped out of sight for three days. I went down to the sea in a ship. But, here's the story replete with details.

Much as I hated to, I abandoned myself to the vagaries on Fifth Avenue. I thought extended residence there might affect my standing as a hitch-hiking globe trotter. I'd get too soft and would shrink from the dirt and grime of the waterfront, and far be it from Cain to "chisel" at this job. So, I made my friends aware, headed, gave thanks for their hospitality and headed for the waterfront again.

At first, I was told, two salty old oil-farmers suggested that a boat-to-boat solicitation would be the best course for me to pursue. They suggested I begin with the scow that was tied up at a near-by dock. It was the most disreputable old scow I've ever laid eyes on. The old salt making the suggestion, gave his companion a sly wink. So, there were ribbons and a tattered flag flying from the stern.

The skipper of the old vessel listened to my story and then informed me that he was only sailing up the river but would sign me on for the trip if I wanted to go. I signed on with a salute to the old tars who thought they were going to have some sport at my expense. I've completed the journey and have a couple of dollars jingling in my pocket. So, I'm the winner in that attempt to make my face red.

But the most important feature is that the skipper of the scow knows a sea captain of an ocean freighter who will be in port Thursday and believes he can persuade the captain to sign me on for the crossing. Being a seasoned sailor with three days on the scow, I don't see how he can afford to turn me down.

ETHERIDGE TO SPEAK ON EAGLES PROGRAM

Judge Anton L. Etheridge of the Municipal Court of Atlanta will be principal speaker at the Mother's Day program of the Fraternal Order of Eagles which will be presented at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Eagle Hall, 102 1/2 Luckie street.

Dr. James M. Harvey of the Central Methodist Church, which will pronounce the invocation and others on the program include Mrs. W. R. Ellis and Mrs. J. C. Crumley, Judge A. M. Roan, president of the Atlanta Eagles, will preside.

PLAYERS AT EMORY LIKE SPOOKY PLAY

In the spooky setting of a railway station waiting room, which seems to have stepped right out of the "Emory Players" find a perfect vehicle in "The Ghost Train," which they will present at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the Glenn Memorial auditorium.

Twenty of capable players include Ed Pendleton, Virginia Dillon, Cristy Harp, Marion Calhoun, Catrien Phinney Latimer, Joe Leibether, Sam Shiver, George Smith, Glenn Hutchinson and Roberta Cason.

Major General George Van Horn Moseley, commander of the fourth corps area of the army, will leave here today by plane for Tuscaloosa, Ala., where he will speak before civic clubs.

From Tuscaloosa he will go to

Camp Beauregard, La., to inspect civilian conservation corps activities

and the general will go to Fort Benning,

Ga., Saturday morning. He will return to Atlanta Sunday and visit

Fort Benning again Monday, May 13,

to be present at maneuvers of the

INTENSIFIED WAR ON CANCER

The extent to which the physicians of Georgia are co-operating in the intensified war being waged on cancer is revealed in the report submitted Tuesday to the house of delegates of the state medical association by Dr. J. L.
Campbell, chairman of the association's cancer commission. The report will be submitted today to the annual convention of the association.

During the year the activities taken to combat the ravages of what is now man's most dread enemy have included a state-wide survey to ascertain the number of cancer patients in Georgia, the distribution of thousands of educational pamphlets into homes through the parent-teacher associations and women's clubs, the writing of thousands of letters to the members of the profession, and lectures at district medical meetings devoted to the discussion of cancer.

Cancer clinics have been established in leading hospitals in every section in the state as a step toward the objective of the association such clinics "may not only within the financial but also within the geographic reach of every stricken individual in Georgia."

The vital importance of the educational work being carried on by the medical fraternity is emphasized by the fact that it has been conclusively demonstrated that cancer, when treated in time, can be cured in the great majority of cases. Science has yet to discover a cure when treatment is too long delayed.

In the work during the past year valuable assistance has been rendered by Dr. M. F. Haygood, on furlough from his duties as superintendent of the state sanitarium at Alto, to aid in the health work of the FERA.

The tragic inroads being made by cancer every year make its control of vital importance to the public-lic, and the labor of the medical profession of the state in seeking not only to bring about a general knowledge of the necessity for early treatment, but to establish clinics in easy reach of every sufferer, is an outstanding service.

THE PHILIPPINE UPRISEING

The uprising staged by radical elements in the Philippines is not to be construed as reflecting any major dissatisfaction among the people of the islands.

The abortive movement seems to have arisen from the activities of a handful of irresponsible malcontents who took advantage of the division of opinion in the island on the question of acceptance of the 10-year transition independence plan proffered by the United States.

The will of the Filipinos on the plan will be registered in the plebiscite to be held next Tuesday, and indications are that the proposal will be overwhelmingly approved.

Despite this apparent certainty, the comparatively small group who are demanding immediate independence, and who are banded under the name of sakdalists, fomented the uprising of last week, evidently in the hope of accomplishing a coup that would arouse general support and make possible the seizure of the island government.

The great majority of the Filipinos realize that immediate independence and the resultant loss of the protection offered by American tariffs would bring a quick collapse of economic conditions in the islands. The greater part of Philippine exports come to the United States, being admitted tariff-free.
With independence this advantage will be lost, and the American market captured by similar exports from Cuba, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and other nearer areas.

The irresponsible nature of the uprising is emphasized by the appearance of one of the leaders in Tokyo, openly stating his purpose as the enlistment of the aid of the Japanese government in the revolutionary effort, and possessing a supply of printed matter bearing the title "An Appeal to the Gallant Japanese People." Naturally he has not been able to present his plea to the Tokyo government.

With the completion of "mopping-up" activities by the Philippine constabulary, and the trial of suspected leaders, the incident will be closed. Although the surprise movement was successful in seizing control of several small towns, little difficulty was encountered in putting them to flight, and the revolt was never of sufficient size to be termed as serious.

HEMING GERMANY IN

The recent Franco-Russian pact and the agreement reached at Venice between representatives of Italy, Austria and Hungary are major steps toward the creation of an iron ring around Germany, backed by nations having five or six times the population of the reich and able upon necessity to muster armies equally predominant.

The pact between France and Russia includes the specific agreement of military co-operation should either be attacked. Thus the two largest standing armies in Europe will stand ready to move jointly should Germany make an offensive move.

The statement of General Goering, German air minister, issued immediately following the announcement of the pact, that "Germany's air forces will always be as strong as any outside combination," has already been met by an official Russian statement that the present soviet standing army of a million men will be materially increased.

In view of the huge air forces possessed by both Russia and France, and the ability of both nations to increase them to far larger proportions, the Goering statement is largely bravado. Should the nazis attempt an air armament race on the reich would be bankrupted.

With Germany's southern and northern borders faced by powerful antagonists ready to act in unison, the Venice agreement paves the way for the adoption of the Danubian conference next week of an Italo-Austro-Hungarian pact that will put another link in the chain being welded to isolate Germany.

The only remaining links would be German-Czechoslovakian and German-Polish borders, and the forging of these links will be one of the chief objectives of the Danubian conference. It is considered certain that Czechoslovakia will sign and probate that Poland will.

Against such a combination Germany will be helpless, regardless of the extent to which she rearms, and whether or not Great Britain should actively side with her opponents.

With the consummation of these treaties, the signatory nations will be in a strong position to call any bluff that Hitler may make. He will be successful in his moves so far chiefly because of the acknowledged injustices of the treaty of Versailles and the inefficiency and impotence of the League of Nations.

The door is left open in the Franco-Russian pact for Germany to co-operate if she will enter the eastern European agreements now being framed. Whether Hitler elects to stand alone or to oblige himself under one of the agreements, his hands will be securely tied.

It thus appears that the diplomatic moves being rapidly consummated give promise of continued peace in that they are effectively checkmating the nazi threat.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Can It Be Done?

Mr. Baldwin, the British prime minister, made the following remarkable declaration: "Our empire is the greatest single force in the world for peace, and if that were the only reason for keeping it together it would be a sufficient reason before the face of all mankind. We have to admit that we had dreamed of it after the war, is not going to be effective in the near future. And I hope that all those who, like the government, have worked with it and for it, will stick to it today as they have never done before. Can you expect that in 10 years the nations of the world will turn over a new leaf and turn it over for good and forever? No.
To fight for peace among nations is like the fight for decency and cleanliness in human lives. If you will not fight, fight it, and fight it all your life, and some day you will win. I wish for many reasons that flying had never been invented, but it has been. And somehow we have got to Christianize it."

Mr. Baldwin touched on the suggestion of an international air force, and said,
"You may live to see something of the kind done." But meanwhile, he said, there were few people who would believe that the government was not responsible for the decision that so far as the air was concerned
this country should be no whit inferior to any country within striking distance of our shore.

"Few things made me more anxious during the debate last week on the white-paper which we published than the lack of public interest in the speeches of the socialist party. It made me anxious in this way, because if I understood their speeches there was no reluctance on their part to go to war as a sanction against some country that might be an aggressor, but there was reluctance to see that if we went to war we were properly equipped.
The Ring. This is trying to ride two horses at once, and riding them at expense of somebody else."

Historic Ring
To Flames.

A valuable ring that should have been successfully bequeathed to the best living German actor was deliberately destroyed by its present owner at the cremation of Alexander Moissi, the actor. The ring was known as the German actor's Iffland ring.
Its first owner, the distinguished 19th century actor Iffland, bequeathed it on his deathbed to his brilliant contemporary, Ludwig Devrient, on the understanding that he in turn should pass it on to the most outstanding player of the time. The last owner of the ring, Rudolf Bassermann, received it from the famous playwright Friedrich Haase.

In 1930 Bassermann declared his intention of bequeathing the ring when he died to Werner Kraus, but Bassermann severed his connection with the German stage 18 months ago when his Jewish wife was refused permission to act any longer with him. He is now writing a biography of himself, and he has seen Werner Kraus accepting honors from Nazi hands.
So this week he consigned the coveted Iffland ring to the flames by setting it upon the finger of Alexander Moissi
a few hours before his cremation.

DIPLOMACY Great Britain's diplomatic antics lately have caused some authorities to surmise that she will abandon her traditional position as the balance of power in Europe. None of the State Department authorities here have been fooled into that assumption.

The real reasoning behind current British policy is the same which has motivated her for centuries. She wants to keep any single group of powers from becoming too strong in Europe and thus threatening her own position.

The defiant German submarine and airship policy has forced Britain to let Hitler think she is about to join forces with France and Russia. Authentic diplomatic advice here says her purpose is to try to get Hitler back into the family of nations with some reasonable evidence of his sincere desire to join in a peace agreement.

Once that evidence is forthcoming, Britain will move right over to Germany's side and start championing Hitler's equality of rights.

COURAGE The unusual political courage of the late Senator Cutting was little known because he was an unobtrusive individual without the customary talents of politicians for speaking about themselves. He operated a newspaper out in New Mexico which was once bitterly fighting a rival paper. His editor published front page editorials denouncing the rival for printing secret senate business. When Senator Cutting found out about it, he wired his editor ordering his paper to take exactly the same position as the rival. He wanted to advocate the publication of all senate business, even though it hurt his own business.

BANKERS An influential banker sided up to an administration man a few days ago and suggested the bankers might come out in favor of the new bank bill if a few changes were made.
"No," said the New Dealer. "It will be all right to make some changes, but if the senate even thought that the bankers of the country were in favor of this bill, we would never get it passed.

Health Talks
BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

SAGA OF THE ROVING GRISTLE.

The narrator is a registered nurse.
"In 1930 I fell in a hospital and hurt my knee. I will inclose the X-ray report, but it is not as bad as the report says it is. I can walk miles, no swelling or difficulty, but to go to a movie or ride in or drive a car the pain is very severe if I have to keep my leg bent in the ordinary sitting position.

"One doctor gave me 10 sulphur injections. It might as well have been water. Another said he would not give me anything, but that I would have to reduce and put me on thyroid.
I tried taking thyroid two years ago,
but it took only a few doses when it affected my heart and the doctor stopped it.

"I have paid out (plenty, for a nurse) for treatment and no relief.
There is little worse at present, but I do hope to be fit to work when the rare calls come. My metabolism is 10 minus, F. P. around 15.
The doctor says he doesn't know which endocrine condition he is at fault.
(Miss—let us say—Guided Woman.)"

With the narrative is the report by the roentgenologist to the physician:
"The salient features noted are:
—evidence of fracture or dislocation.

"Definite chronic hypertrophic osteoarthritis changes about the articular surface of the patella, about the lateral condyle of the femur. (Low-grade rheumatism to fragment of bone density measuring approximately 2 mm. in width and 1 mm. in length lies apparently within the joint on the anterior and medial aspects; this appears to be a loose body."

The token was carried from flower to flower, from tree to tree, and thus the seed in the blossom was made fruitful.

Call the plan an accident if you will. In any case it was a necessary arrangement, and to interfere with it was to invite trouble.

Man did interfere, as usual with the best of intentions, and quickly paid the penalty.

In some regions he cleared the woodland, plowed up the last patch of weeds, and sprayed his cultivated plants with poison to kill insect pests.

He succeeded in killing his enemies, but he killed his friends as well.
And his fields of clover produced no seed and his trees produced no fruit, till he learned his lesson and imported colonies of honey bees to do the work of the wild insects he had killed.

Was it providence to blame when the clover bore no seed? Was it the folly and stupidity of man that causes mankind's woes.

Protected and venerated by folly, the cobra kills 100,000 people a year; yet its venom, properly used, promises to be the greatest blessing yet discovered by medical science.

NEW PARLEY SEEN ON SCHOOL FUNDS

Georgians Confer With Hopkins; To Meet Him Again Soon.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, May 7.—Armed with additional facts to prove the state's right to school relief funds retrospective to February 1, the Georgia congressional delegation today decided to again call upon Relief Administrator Hopkins for aid before presenting an appeal to President Roosevelt. It could not be learned what additional facts have been uncovered, but a caucus of the house delegation this morning it was decided to confer with Mr. Hopkins further before seeking a White House appointment.

In a formal statement at the conclusion of the caucus, Representative Carl Vinson, dean of the delegation, said:

"The Georgia delegation met this morning to discuss the question of securing school relief funds retrospective to February 1, from the FERA. The delegation's request of Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins at a previous conference was declined, but at the meeting this morning it was decided that additional facts have come to light in connection with the question which should be presented to Mr. Hopkins before an appeal is made to the president."

"It therefore was decided to arrange for another interview with Mr. Hopkins and to request the presence of two Georgia senators with the Georgia delegation in the further presentation of the matter."

At a late hour, a definite date had been set for the meeting with the relief administrator, but Mr. Vinson anticipated no trouble in arranging it within the next few days. Both Senators George and Russell, of Georgia, have been asked to attend the meeting and they have indicated their acceptance.

On May 1, when the delegation last saw Mr. Hopkins in an effort to straighten out the school fund row, the administrator told the delegation he had gone as far as he could and that the onus for meeting unpaid bills of state rural school teachers rested squarely on the shoulders of the governor. The delegation specifically requested that funds be allotted to the state school system he retrospective to February 1 instead of April 19, the date specified in instructions sent to Miss B. G. Shipperson, state relief administrator.

Gov. T. E. Thompson himself had no comment to make on the school fund situation beyond stating he was according to the delegation to see that the needs of the state schools are met.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(P)—President Roosevelt today reappointed Thomas W. Page, of Virginia, as a member of the Tariff Commission.

Betty and Benny Good, Too, Says Baer After Viewing Their Daring Sky Dance

Max Baer may be the heavyweight champion, but he admits he wouldn't attempt the feat performed by Benny and Betty Fox, who do a death-defying dance on a 24-inch platform atop a 75-foot pole. The champion is shown above, center, with Benny and Betty. In the insert the pair are shown on top of the platform upon which they do their dance of death.

Mr. Max Baer, who at the present time is the world's heavyweight boxing champion, is afraid to fight any man on the face of the globe, but he wouldn't take the place of Benny or Betty Fox, death-defying sky dancers, for all the shekels he expects to coin as the champion, he admits.

Benny and Betty will do their dance of death tomorrow afternoon. Their dancing floor will be a tiny platform, 24 inches in diameter, perched on top of a 75-foot pole.

To climb on top of that tiny platform and dance just a few steps would be a feat of the ninth magnitude. But Benny and Betty will dance, jump the rope and otherwise disport themselves for six solid hours. The whole performance is almost beyond comprehension, but the death dancers have done it before, and will do it again.

Benny and Betty will ascend to their precarious perch at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. There, in view of tens of thousands who are expected to witness their thrilling dance, they will remain for six long hours. Food and any necessary clothing will be sent up to them by means of a basket on a pulley.

The masculine member of the dancing team also sparked rumors that he and Betty are fair-weather dancers. "We are going to be up on that platform doing our dance, regardless of the weather," he declared. "Rain, snow or lightning won't bother us; we'll go right ahead with the performance. We've been through it before and can do it again."

It was on the Pacific coast, where thousands of thousands of persons have witnessed the spectacular dance of death, that Benny and Betty met the great Max Baer. The heavyweight title holder bestowed the title of champions upon the dancing couple after viewing their performance, and will take it.

For Benny and Betty are the only team of sky dancers in the world. Others may have aspired to duplicate their death defying performance, but none have ever attempted to do so.

It takes something to dance on top of a 24-inch platform, where the slightest misstep, the most momentary loss of balance, means death.

"Max Baer told them he wouldn't attempt to do our dance for all the money he expects to make as heavyweight champion, and I rather believe he meant it," Benny said in telling of his friendship with the champion. "On the other hand, I wouldn't care to take some of the socks on the chin that Max has taken."

There are skeptics who believe that Benny and Betty are secured to their platform by thin, but very sturdy wires, and that even if they did fall they would drop only a few feet.

"There are no wires or anything to hold us up in case we should lose our balance," Betty announced. "To prove that statement we will skip a rope on top of the platform." "And it's a physical impossibility to skip a rope when a wire is fastened to your body."

A physician and a nurse will be on duty at the foot of the 75-foot pole during the six hours the dance is in progress. Both doctor and nurse are very familiar on hand just in case. "It's a doubtful if either or both fell, that a doctor would have much to do besides pronouncing death."

It is expected that the streets in the vicinity of Loew's Grand for blocks around will be blocked when the dancers ascend to the platform

SIR JOSHUA STAMP FINDS U. S. IS SOUND

British Banker Sees Improvement Throughout Country, World.

CHICAGO, May 7.—(P)—Sir Josiah Stamp, famous British banker, railroad man and economist, announced a cheerful view of affairs in the United States upon his arrival today for a three-day visit.

He summed up a discussion of unemployment, relief policies and the prospect for inflation with this conclusion:

"The United States is bound to get along better now, no matter what you do."

That followed, the British economist said in a railroad station interview, from his observation that recovery was occurring throughout the world.

"The world is rising," he said.

Sir Josiah traveled from Washington, where yesterday he talked with President Roosevelt, with Lady Stamp and a party of Baltimore & Ohio railroad officials headed by Daniel Willard, president of the line.

While Lady Stamp greeted Mrs. Charles H. Bosworth, of suburban Evanston, whose daughter is the wife of the Stamp's son, Dr. Trevor Stamp, Sir Josiah and Willard inspected a new B. & O. semi-streamlined train. Stamp, who is president of the London Midland & Scottish line, inspected several new coaches.

As for the new $4,800,000 public works program, Sir Josiah predicted that "properly handled" the expenditure of that sum would prove effective to "prime the pump." He warned that it would require more time than popularly expected, and said it must be "a corollary of private enterprise, not a rival."

"I want to see private initiative given every encouragement now," he said. "I don't object to regulation by governments—indeed, that's the world trend—if the main motive of private initiative, remains."

Argentina Refuses To Hike Corn Prices

NEW YORK, May 7.—(P)—The Argentine Grain Board has refused to increase its minimum corn price guarantee, for fear it would prevent the United States from buying Argentine corn, according to information cables from the Argentine bureau of information.

The cable said that the grain board had denied petitions of a group of rural co-operation societies to boost the minimum guaranteed price to the equivalent of 49.14 cents a bushel, at the official rate of exchange, from the present 36.8 cents.

The cable said that the grain board of agriculture, presiding at the grain board meeting, said that dust storms in the United States had not seriously affected the main corn belt, and that if the United States was to have recourse to Argentina, it would be on the condition that there was no artificial price inflation factor.

Argentina corn exports to all parts of the world were said to be developing on a large scale, amounting to 200,752 tons last week, against 129,469 tons in the like period of 1934.

Avalanche in Bahia Adds 30 to Death Toll

BAHIA, Brazil, May 7.—(P)—Six bodies rolled from a hillside under an avalanche today in storm-stricken Bahia and an estimated 30 persons were killed in the wreckage of the houses.

This city of 300,000 began clearing away debris and wreckage left by seven succeeding days of high wind and heavy rains, still wonder how many persons died in the greatest storm of its history.

Earlier estimates ranging as high as 200 were reduced as officials started their check of the dead, but many Brazilians wandered about the city and its suburbs seeking missing relatives and most reliable sources believed at least 75 persons died in the city and its environs.

Fish Is Not Averse To Leading G.O.P.

OMAHA, May 7.—(P)—Congressman Hamilton Fish, Jr., republican, New York, in an interview here said today he might be a candidate for president in the next national election if the convention should nominate him on the basis of proportional voting, he added, were turning to the republican party.

Congressman Fish declared that since the first of the year he had found evidence to lead him to believe the voters had "given up" President Roosevelt and the hope of reaching prosperity through his leadership.

He said the voters, he added, were turning to the republican party.

At 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. In fact, several thousand stopped to watch yesterday when the pole was hoisted into position.

The Beautiful Derelict

BY CAROLYN WELLS

safely away. Then he went and sat in Barry's library, the place he liked best to think over his problems.

And at this moment, he decided that his greatest problem, for the moment, was Vera Van Zandt. Had she cared for her husband? Had she hated her husband?

And the two of them could be answered affirmatively, if he understood aright some things she said and did.

But she was an uncertain proposition, at best, and Fleming Stone was by no means sure that he did understand her contradictory nature.

He admired Vera. Her great and fascinating beauty would demand admiration from any man. He liked her. Her quick-witted brain and intelligent mind commanded his appreciation.

And yet, to a certain degree he suspected her. Was she not herself capable of being any of those women she had mentioned? A Lucrezia Borgia? A Messalina?

Could he not imagine her tiring of her uninteresting spouse, to such an extent as to murder the man who had loved her?

What's it like?" "Like a self-starter, and that's what Mr. Pat Wayne says it is. I thought you know about it."

"Noppy never saw or heard of it. He's a Mr. Pat Wayne, ask him."

"I'm sure it's a starter of some kind," Pat replied to Rod's query. "And as it puzzled me, too, I looked about Barry's desk and found some preliminary plans for the thing. Don't let us keep you, Rod—he's Jane now. Want to see the drawings, Mr. Stone?"

"I'm sorry about it, Or, have you them with you?" "I have some small ones. There are others, too, large to pocket."

Pat produced some papers, which were crude but definite drawings of what was undoubtedly a starter for an electric motor.

He asked Stone if he cared to have them and the detective took them, rather absent-minded, and laid them on a table beside him.

Pat went off then, and Stone possessed himself of the drawings, went up to his rooms and put them there.

That would necessitate reversing the order of action.

Van went down in the hatch to find Barry there, leaning over his machine. Suppose opportunity brought him into a situation, and an instrument of some sort lay ready. Mightn't he have struck the blow and gone back up on deck to think things over?

Mightn't he have taken a tablet without knowing he did so, and then died soon afterward?

Motive? Jealousy of his wife, of course. Stone had heard of this since his arrival of Van Zandt's insane jealousy of Vera, and knew, too, that it was directed to one or another of the three Waynes.

This jealousy had been fostered by the lady herself who used it as an instrument of persuasion for many things she wanted.

Yet there were other jealousies not so far away that might well enter the field of motive.

There was Rodney's jealousy, or rather envy Barry's engagement to one of the boys wanted a girl, the other wanted her, too.

Rodney Campion, though of calm demeanor, had a quick temper and a habit of sudden exhibitions of it.

He was the last on Stone's list, and though he had not yet accused him of that position, indicated that he was the chief suspect.

There were absurdities that accompanied such a suspicion Stone admitted. Campion was a popular young man, a good fellow with many friends and no known enemies.

A man of similar tastes and pursuits to those of the Waynes, Rodney's energies found sympathy and good-natured rivalry in their love of all water sports as well as their scientific and other ingenious inventions.

Why should a man like this, a well-bred, highly educated, friendly sort of chap, plan to murder his best friend, and then—presumably—kill another, who had overthrown him in the battles, and play a part which has been built up around his name. Some historians think Robin Hood represents a class of people at this early period; and never was intended to be thought of as an actual individual.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Farbey, Ph.D.

Robin Hood is a legendary person, who is supposed to have lived in Nottinghamshire, England, about the 12th or 13th century. Historians are quite agreed that he has never been anything more than an imaginary person whom the common people have created in their minds. There is no tangible evidence of such a person's ever having lived, and his existence probably rests on the ballads, songs, and plays which have been built up around his name. Some historians think Robin Hood represents a class of people at this early period; and never was intended to be thought of as an actual individual.

NATIONAL DEFENSE UPHELD BY VETERANS

Spanish War Body at Macon
Names Bernhardt State Commander.

MACON, Ga., May 7.—(AP)—Resolutions upholding national defense aims and attacking those who would not bear arms for their country, were adopted today in the closing session of the United Spanish War Veterans, Georgia department.

The veterans attacked a projected institute on international relations scheduled to be held in Atlanta, charging its sponsors are "peace racketeers" under oath not to take part in any way should this country become involved in war.

Charles William Bernhardt, of Atlanta, formerly inspector of the state organization, was elected commander and installed during the closing session.

Louis B. Poole, of Albany, was elected senior vice commander and Homer W. Stephens, Demorest, named junior vice commander. These three will appoint other secretaries.

Mrs. Ivie B. Henderson of Savannah, was elected president of the Georgia department auxiliary. Mrs. Henderson, who served as senior vice president last year, succeeds Mrs. Ida B. Woodward, who presided at the convention.

Other officers elected were Mrs. James Austin, Macon, senior vice president; Mrs. Lottie Simons, Columbus, junior vice president; Mrs. J. W. Parham, Albany, chaplain; Mrs. Woodie Mathews, Atlanta, executive director; Mrs. C. L. Gallagher, Atlanta, historian; Mrs. Theresa Shadwell, Atlanta, judge advocate; Mrs. Martina Wise, Augusta, conductor; Mrs. Elizabeth Scogin, Atlanta, assistant conductor; Mrs. Elizabeth Madison, Macon, guard, and Mrs. Bertha Gassett, Atlanta, assistant guard.

Four Persons Perish As Artist's Home Burns

BOSTON, May 7.—(AP)—Four persons met swift and flaming death in fire which today swept the four-story Back Bay mansion of John Lavalle internationally known portrait artist. World War bombing pilot and grandson of a former dictator of the Argentine.

Two of those who died were his crippled 59-year-old mother, Mrs. John Lavalle Sr., sister of Mrs. Curtis Gladwin, widow of a former governor of Massachusetts, and his daughter, Alice, 14. Both were found in the flaming ruins of their beds.

The two others who perished were Miss Mary Dolan, 24, and Miss Katharine Costello, 25, maid, who, crazed with fear, gave their grip and found a floor window sash and pushed on the pavement below before firemen could reach ladders.

Seven other persons were injured, including two other daughters of Lavalle, Ellen Elaine, 6, and Mary, 13, who suffered critical injuries in leaps to safety from the flames. Both were taken to City hospital.

SINGING CONVENTION IS SET FOR FAIRBURN

FAIRBURN, Ga., May 7.—The fifty-fifth annual all-day singing convention of old Campbell county will meet Sunday morning in the school auditorium in Fairburn.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Longino, probably the oldest couple living in Campbell county, have signed their names to the program.

B. Harper, president, announced that many singers and former residents of old Campbell county will be present.

Many from Atlanta will attend.

Miss Moore took Miss Horn to the hospital and reported the accident to police.

What Patman Bill
Provides for Vets

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 7.—(AP)—Seventy-five committeemen and farm agents from 17 northwest Georgia counties in a meeting at Atlanta, heard the regulations of the Bankhead cotton bill explained and discussed plans for sending a delegation to Washington May 14-15 when retention of the processing tax will be sought.

It was said at the meeting that 50 growers had been selected to represent this section and that arrangements had been completed for their transportation to the capital.

The group will accompany delegations from Texas, Mississippi, Alabama and other cotton producing states.

The meeting here was called by S. E. Statham, of Americus, chairman of the state advisory cotton committee.

W. A. Johnson, of Tifton, district agricultural agent, presided at an afternoon session when proposed changes in the Bankhead act were discussed.

BEAT COMPETITION WITH ADVERTISING, WINTERS ADVISES

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 7.—(AP)—The law which would permit a corporation of any other state doing business in Georgia to domesticate under the laws of Georgia and while the Coca-Cola Company was engaged in utility experiments, to "meet the challenge of government competition with aggressive sales methods, newspaper advertising and exhaustive research work to improve service."

HOLDING FIRM BAN MEETS OPPOSITION

Senate May Promulgate Regulatory Legislation Without Abolition.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(P)—Senate opposition appeared today to President Roosevelt's proposal to abolish all existing public utility holding companies with the prospect growing that that chamber would enact legislation calling for regulation, without abolition.

An unofficial poll of the senate interstate commerce committee, which has been framing the legislation, showed nine votes against abolishing public utility holding companies, six for it, two undecided, and nine not polled.

Moreover, as the committee continued executive sessions with a view to reporting out the bill this week, there were growing indications of an intention to take some of the teeth out of the bill as originally drafted by administration agencies.

A similar situation was evidenced in a poll several weeks ago of the house committee considering the same legislation. The vote there was 14 against abolishing holding companies and 11 for, with two members not recorded. While it was taken before the president's recent listing of the bill with "preferred" legislation, observers believe the sentiments mainly in favor of the legislation rather than abolition.

Chairman Wheeler, democrat, Montana, outspoken advocate of abolishing holding companies, said modifications were being made in the bill. He said that he had recommended that holding companies operating wholly within one state should be left intact, and that such organizations directing a geographically integrated system in several states might also be permitted.

Under terms of the original bill, abolition of public utility holding companies within five years would be required, and the Federal Power Commission and Securities and Exchange Commission regulation would be given over to the new authority not only as to conduct of the corporation and holding companies, but as to the type of securities they might issue.

Wheeler has contended that the "evils" of holding companies were so great that nothing but abolition would serve. On the other hand, Senator Smith, democrat, South Carolina, a committee member, said today:

"To totally eliminate the whole thing would do more harm than good. Some holding companies are essential, and have done a vast amount of good."

Even more emphatic was Senator Hastings, republican, Delaware.

"It may be," he said, "that the bill can be so modified as to do some good and no harm. To destroy these holding companies in any way this bill does it is simply an outrage."

Wheeler expected to have the bill reported out this week.

ATLANTA COUNCIL HITS AT TALMADGE

pressing grief over the death of Alerman Coleman and conveying the sympathy of the members to the late alerman's family.

The report of the board of fire-masters of its investigation of the Warren fire was adopted without debate. The report contained the following conclusions:

Warren Company Rapped.

"Whereas, the danger of armed revolution is here to overcome by force the existing public utility holding companies was imminent and enlisted the anxiety and solicitude of the ob-servant and thoughtful citizens of our country, and,

"Whereas, the people of the several states of the United States of America practically with one accord selected the Hon. Franklin Delano Roosevelt as the modern Moses best fitted to lead them from the wilderness of hopelessness and fear that encompassed them, and,

"Whereas, this dauntless leader was and is the chosen of the patriotic men in congress without regard to party affiliations have entered into law and put into effect and practice, laws and policies, that are gradually, slowly and surely over-coming many of the ill and evils that brought into being the dangerous conditions that beset our people and threatened the existence of our popular form of government, and,

Misguided Men.

"Whereas, as we begin to see through the gloom the blue skies of hope that portend the early lifting of the clouds of the depression, there appears occasionally in widely scattered sections of our country, design-ing or misguided men who are prompted either by malice or hopes of extracting to themselves public attention the world, otherwise be-dimed, or else are actuated by selfish and ulterior motives:

"Now therefore, the premises con-sidered and in order to give official expression in the matter, it is re-solved by the mayor and general council of the city of Atlanta as fol-lows:

"That we have absolute and un-limited confidence in the ability of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt to safely pilot the ship of state on the remainder of the voyage into the harbor of recovery from the de-pression that is being so surely over-come under his wise and splendid leadership, despite the criticism of few misguided politicians who do not speak the sentiment of the people whom they represent, and who repre-sent and who in fact they misrepresent.

For Average Man.

"That in President Franklin Delano Roosevelt we have a president whose heart ever beats in sympathy with the average man and with the "forgotten man," and who believes that every man, woman and child in these Unit-ed States, in every condition and state of life, should have an equal opportunity before the law for the ac-quistion and enjoyment of all the in-alienable rights to which they are en-titled under the constitution.

"That President Franklin Delano Roosevelt has an unaffected love for his fellow man as evidenced by his ef-forts to assist him in his position as a public servant in advocating legis-la-tion to promote the happiness and welfare of the people, and it might well be said of him as was said of the legendary Abou Ben Adhem, when the last was called of those who loved his fellow man, his name led all the rest.

"That the historian of the future will look with pride upon Franklin Delano Roosevelt among the great presidents of our country, with and among such immortals as Washington, Lincoln, Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roose-velt and Woodrow Wilson.

Attacks Condemned.

"That we condemn with all the indignation of which mortals are cap-able, any and all attacks made upon

President Franklin Delano Roosevelt and the national administration of which he is the head. Such attacks do not represent the sentiments of the people of this section of our common country and do our people a gross in-justice and we repudiate such attacks with all the resentment at our com-munity.

"That a copy of this resolution un-der the seal of the city of Atlanta be mailed by the clerk of council to Hon. Stephen T. Early, Washington D. C. secretary to President Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Petition Presented.

The liquor store election petition was presented by City Clerk J. H. Hen-son Tatum and Councilman McCutchen, chairman of the ordinance com-mittee.

No attempt to get immediate ac-tion was made and Councilman McCutchen said all had agreed to defer action until the next meeting of coun-cil in order not to involve the matter in any way with the statewide vote on prohibition repeal, beer legaliza-tion and wine legaliza-tion, which is set for a week from today. Council's next session will be held May 20.

Close. The Walker-Townley fight for the office of purchasing agent proved one of the closest battles ever seen in council, the issue not being decided until Councilman Richards, the last member voting, cast his ballot for the in-vestiture.

For Walker: Aldermen Joyner, Mitchell, Aldridge and Bell; Councilman Cobb, Loeb, Hester, Bridges, White, Childs, Hastings, Rogers, Marler, Beck, Drennan, Haile, Bolen, Sutton, Rantin and Richards. Total, 20.

For Townley: Aldermen Gilligan, Scott, Tiller, Bowden, Carpenter, Reynolds, Hailey, Murphy and Bar-ton; Councilmen Cuba, McCutchen, Berman, Knight, Owen, McLane, Denker, Lyle, Johnson and Wilson. Total, 19.

Walker was nominated by Alder-man Mitchell and Townley by Alder-man Barrett.

Election Unanimous.

Joyner's election was voted unani-mously after he had been nominated by the city's own commissioners and Cobb.

The election was held after Alderman Barrett had sought to postpone it, apparently to keep Walker from setting the Joyner vote. As it turned out the new alderman's vote proved the majority of one obtained by Walker. After electing his suc-cessor, council adopted a resolution ex-pressing grief over the death of Alerman Coleman and conveying the sympathy of the members to the late alerman's family.

Warren Company Rapped.

"Whereas, the danger of armed revolution is here to overcome by force the existing public utility holding companies was imminent and enlisted the anxiety and solicitude of the ob-servant and thoughtful citizens of our country, and,

"Whereas, the people of the several states of the United States of America practically with one accord selected the Hon. Franklin Delano Roosevelt as the modern Moses best fitted to lead them from the wilderness of hopelessness and fear that encompassed them, and,

"Whereas, this dauntless leader was and is the chosen of the patriotic men in congress without regard to party affiliations have entered into law and put into effect and practice, laws and policies, that are gradually, slowly and surely over-coming many of the ill and evils that brought into being the dangerous conditions that beset our people and threatened the existence of our popular form of government, and,

Misguided Men.

"Whereas, as we begin to see through the gloom the blue skies of hope that portend the early lifting of the clouds of the depression, there appears occasionally in widely scattered sections of our country, design-ing or misguided men who are prompted either by malice or hopes of extracting to themselves public attention the world, otherwise be-dimed, or else are actuated by selfish and ulterior motives:

"Now therefore, the premises con-sidered and in order to give official expression in the matter, it is re-solved by the mayor and general council of the city of Atlanta as fol-lows:

For Average Man.

"That in President Franklin Delano Roosevelt we have a president whose heart ever beats in sympathy with the average man and with the "forgotten man," and who believes that every man, woman and child in these Unit-ed States, in every condition and state of life, should have an equal opportunity before the law for the ac-quistion and enjoyment of all the in-alienable rights to which they are en-titled under the constitution.

"That President Franklin Delano Roosevelt has an unaffected love for his fellow man as evidenced by his ef-forts to assist him in his position as a public servant in advocating legis-la-tion to promote the happiness and welfare of the people, and it might well be said of him as was said of the legendary Abou Ben Adhem, when the last was called of those who loved his fellow man, his name led all the rest.

"That the historian of the future will look with pride upon Franklin Delano Roosevelt among the great presidents of our country, with and among such immortals as Washington, Lincoln, Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roose-velt and Woodrow Wilson.

Attacks Condemned.

"That we condemn with all the indignation of which mortals are cap-able, any and all attacks made upon

President Franklin Delano Roosevelt and the national administration of which he is the head. Such attacks do not represent the sentiments of the people of this section of our common country and do our people a gross in-justice and we repudiate such attacks with all the resentment at our com-munity.

Spring Horse Show Headquarters Opened On Broad Street

Headquarters for the seventh annual spring horse show, to be staged at Fort McPherson May 31, June 1-2, have been opened at 52 North Broad street by the Atlanta Horse Show Association. Premium lists have been mailed to leading exhibitors throughout the country and entries will be received at the office until midnight Saturday, May 25.

Major Reese M. Howell, executive manager of the show, is in charge of the office and is assisted by Mrs. W. A. Lane, clerk. Those desiring to communicate with Major Howell can phone him at Walnut 2850. The office will be open daily from 9 to 4:30 o'clock. The Young Matrons' Circle for Tal-lah Falls school will sponsor the show for the association, with Mrs. W. Eugene Harrington as general chairman and Mrs. Marion P. Candler as co-chairman. Mrs. Harrington, Mrs. Candler and Mrs. Harry Rogers, publicity director, will be at the office daily or can be reached by phoning Walnut 3018.

Mrs. Harrington and Mrs. Candler have appointed the following chairmen from the Young Matrons' Circle to assist with sponsoring the show: Soft drinks, Mrs. Beverly DuBose with Mrs. Harrison Hines and Mrs. J. C. Candler; refreshments, Mrs. Thomas W. Connally; program advertising, Mrs. Wilson Kemp Jr., with Mrs. Franklin Chalmers and Mrs. John Nichols as team captains; program sale, Mrs. Irving Schweppes with Mrs. James Wilcox co-chairmen; special sale, Mrs. Lindsey Hopkins Jr.; posters, Mrs. Herbert Porter; radio, Mrs. Indian Jones; souvenirs, Mrs. Martin Kilpatrick; ticket delivery, Mrs. Charles Hurt Jr.; dance, Mrs. Errol Hay and fashion show, Mrs. Albert Lewis Jr.

Druid Hills Garden Club To Meet.

Druid Hills Garden Club meets Thursday, May 9, at 10:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Ralph Black, 555 Oakdale road. Mrs. Carl Lewis and Mrs. W. B. Spann will be co-hostesses with Mrs. Black at the luncheon which will follow the business meeting. Report will be rendered of the annual picnic to be held on May Day at the Biltmore hotel.

Druid Hills Garden Club issues an invitation to the flower-loving public to visit its rose garden and fountain garden located at Lullwater road and Ponce de Leon avenue. The roses are at the height of their beauty and will continue to bloom in profusion during May, according to Mrs. J. Fred Mesick, president.

Bridge Club Meets.

The "As You Like It" bridge club met at the home of Mrs. Hugh Gatlin, on Josephine street, Wednesday. Luncheon was served. Mrs. J. G. Epler won top score and Mrs. Horace Donaldson cut consolation.

Antique Satin Wedding Gown Will Be Worn by Miss Scott

By Sally Forth.

WHEN Betty Watson-Scott becomes the bride of Jack Healey Jr. on May 15 she will resemble an old-fashioned daguerreotype. Bespeaking romance of bygone days, the dainty bride-elect, who is divinely fair and most divinely tall, will wear her maternal grandmother's wedding dress. The latter was the late Mrs. Elizabeth Stephenson Emerson and her marriage to Harry T. Emerson was a social event of November 9, taking place in Menominee, Mich., in 1886.

The dress is fashioned of white satin combined with exquisite rose point lace. According to a connoisseur of such things, the dress is worthy of space in a museum of renown. It is fashioned in period style and Betty will truly look like the traditional "lady in the picture." The lines of the bridal gown will be most becoming to her slender and graceful figure.

She will carry the imported lace handkerchief which her grandmother used at her wedding. Betty's lace cap will be the same as that worn by her mother, Mrs. Trammell Scott, at her marriage. Falling from her cap in voluminous folds will be the veil belonging to Mrs. Stanley Hunt, the former Barbara Case. Mrs. Scott, you know, will be matron of honor for her daughter, and Mrs. Hunt will be among the bridesmaids.

SALLY found all hands on deck, so to speak, when she stopped at 671 Peachtree street yesterday. The big warehouse presented a scene of busy activity as final touches were being made for the first flower show to open there Thursday under sponsorship of the Peachtree Garden Club. Sally had no idea that plans for the show were of such proportion. It is doubtful that a flower show of its size has ever been held in the south.

Among those found at headquarters early in the morning were Frances Floyd Cocke, Rebecca Ashcraft McGinnis and Katherine Howell Cooper. They were down on their knees, believe it or not, laying brick for the wall that will encircle the Piedmont Garden Club's exhibit. Ellen Newell Bryan was busily engaged in mixing mortar for the laying of the brick.

Sally saw the dignified Mrs. Reuben Arnold wielding a paint brush in the Peachtree Garden Club's miniature garden. Mrs. William Kiser and Mrs. Evelyn Harris directed workmen in the construction of the flower stalls lining the walls of the building. It was amazing to learn that the exquisite pastel awnings covering the many stalls were actually dyed by Mrs. Malcolm Fleming.

Exhausted from her work, Mrs. John Stewart sought a few minutes' rest on a chaise longue as she continued to direct plans for the Habersham Club's miniature garden. Mrs. Phinney Calhoun carried moss-covered rocks, carefully wrapped in cellophane, for the Peachtree Garden Club's exhibit. Sally could not suppress a smile when she encountered Dorothy Dean Harris rolling a wheelbarrow filled with black dirt with which to sod the grass for the Cherokee Club's plot.

THERE seems to be a husband's side to this flower show, too, for many are complaining that they have become widowers at least temporarily. They want to know if members of the garden clubs really stay at 671 Peachtree street from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m. every day. One particularly upset husband confided to Sally one day this week that he had two kinds of canned soup and three desserts for dinner, and his doctor has ordered a vegetable diet. He further complained that the maid spends all of each day making sandwiches for the garden club.

After the show is over, doubtless the wives involved will get together and devise ways and means to dispose of husbands during the preparation for the 1936 flower show. Plans will probably be made for a cruise to coincide with the dates of the show. For the stay-at-homes, stag dinners will be arranged for each evening, with bridge and tennis tournaments in the afternoons. Of course, there is always golf, the ubiquitous sick friend, the emergency business conference, or a lodge meeting. But for some reason these occupations have failed to attract this week.

Of course, when all is said and done, even the crossest and most unreasonable husband will visit the show. And like all the others, he will go home secretly bursting with pride over the project in general and over his wife's exhibit in particular. If it came to a showdown, Sally wagers that there is not one garden club husband in Atlanta who would not proclaim with the multitude, "On With the Show!"

WHEN Elinor and Baxter Rains Jr. left for their wedding trip last week following their marriage at the First Presbyterian church, they headed east in their car, with Washington and New York as objectives. But like all best-laid plans, they were subject to change.

It seems that Elinor's father, Harry B. Nelson, had announced plans to sail today from New Orleans for a stay of several months in Panama. He will be accompanied by his brother, A. C. Nelson, of Des Moines, Iowa, who was among the out-of-town guests at his niece's wedding.

Elinor could not stand the thoughts of such a long separation without another glimpse of her adored father. So she and Baxter did an about-face and traveled to New Orleans to greet the travelers upon their arrival there last night. And they will be on the dock at noon today when the pair sets sail for Balboa.

Amoma Class Meets.

The April business meeting of the Amoma class of the Baptist Tabernacle was held Tuesday evening at the church, with 22 present. Plans were made for the work of the class and reports were given by officers present. Eight new group captains were installed on Sunday.

Those present were Mesdames R. E. Weinmeister, E. B. Goodwin, J. C. Jester, Wylie Stephens, Maxie Starnes, J. L. Tarpley, H. D. Flanagan, J. A. Thomas, I. C. Walters, W. A. Acree, L. A. Duke, Frank Lee, J. R. K. and Mrs. Bocchio, Maurice Alexander, Misses Beulie, Maxine, Ludlow, Elizabeth Rawls, Ethel Wise, Ruth Beacham, Billie White, Lillie Lee Elliott.

A fish fry will be sponsored by the Kie Club at the Elks home, 726 Peachtree street, May 10, from 6 to 10 o'clock. Tickets will be 35 cents. Those desiring to play bridge are requested to bring cards.

Camp Fire Girls Honor Mothers

Alliance Meets Thursday, May 9.

The Alliance Francaise meets on Thursday, May 9, at 3 o'clock, when the Misses Caroline and Louise Sisson and Miss Laura B. Larendon will honor the members of the home. Mr. Paul Seydel, who will relate some of his impressions during his recent trip to the Belgian Congo.

Dr. George Raffalovich will speak on "Les Djinns" of Victor Hugo, this month being consecrated in France to the memory of the great poet, now in his 150th anniversary.

A camp skit will be presented by Mrs. Arthur Gresham and Mrs. B. T. Simpson, with the following girls taking part: Misses Jane Bushfield, Anna Norris, Christine Jones, Jane and Barbara King, Beverly Howard, Dorothy and Helen Clark, Sandra Beverly Davison, Mary Cobb McIvor, Magda Dodge, Sara Patillo, Gloria Schwager, Ruth Lou Dougherty, Julia Slack, Mary Allison Wall, Beth Daniel, Martha Branch, Jean Muller, Margaret Barbre, Frances Hender, Mary Grossman, Mary Elizabeth Kilpatrick, and Mrs. Fannie King.

A fashion show will be presented by Mrs. John Knox, carrying out the theme of this year's birthday project of Camp Fire Girls, "My Place in the World." Clothes modeled will be from Davison-Paxon's by the following: Misses Dorothy Marlow, Jane Oatby, Dorothy Hall, Margaret Avery, Helen of Frogman, Dorothy Anne Woods, Patricia Morrow, Mary Steele, Karen Norris, Catherine Hobbs, Betty Eaton, Edna Screeen, Julia Simpson, Myrtle Durham, Helen Dumestre, Marjorie Cravy, Marilyn Kohn, Nancy McLarry, Eleanor Wells, Tays Tarvin, Carolyn Simmins, Betty Jackson, Jackie Conklin, Judith Hartigan, Mary Jane Wilson, Beruice Flowers, Elsie O'Callahan, Ruth Slack, Dorothy Frank, Mildred Thompson, Evelyn Sudderth, Gloria Smith, Mary Louise Smedley, Patricia Wells, Frances Ellis, Betty Brantley, Edith Connor, Evelyn Hoffman, Jacqueline Snelling, Gloria Hoffman, Shirley Muse, Mary Gandy, Jane Colb, Jennie Turner, Louise Nunnelee, Ann Hubbard and Evie Warlick. The public is invited to attend.

Birthday Party. Mrs. C. S. Miles, of Decatur, entertained at a children's party Tuesday, honoring her grandson, Charlie Bob Haynie, on his eighth birthday.

Many interesting games were enjoyed. Coin Campbell Jr. and Marion Weaver winning the prizes. The beautiful birthday cake graced the center of the dining table. Favors were Japanese bell-shaped.

The guests included Byron Hall, Jack Kitchens, Edward Barrow, Bea Reynolds, Charles Weaver, Coin Campbell Jr. and Marion Weaver.

Mrs. Miles was assisted in the entertaining by her daughter, Mrs. Chester Haynie, mother of the honor guest, and by Mrs. R. U. Kitchens.

members, and that he hasn't seen the butler since he left a week ago to assist with the flower show.

There are numerous other complaints. Where are the lovely arrangements of garden flowers which have always filled the home? The Pekinges and the bulldog need attention. The electric fuse selects this week to misbehave. There are no lights, no ice. The grass needs cutting. The cook has flu. And there is a leak in the guest room.

Marriage of Miss Wakefield To Sam Ford Announced Today

Mr. and Mrs. James Rogers Wakefield announce the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy Marie, to Sam Ford, son of Mrs. Cora Lee Ford and the late John A. Ford. The marriage was solemnized in Perry, Ga., on April 26.

The bride is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rogers Wakefield. She is the sister of Miss Margaret Wakefield. On her paternal side she is the granddaughter of Mary Rogers and Ellwood Wakefield, of South Carolina. On her maternal side she is the granddaughter of the late Dr. S. M. Johnson and Nannie Hill Johnson, of Taliaferro and Warren counties, Georgia. The bride received her education at Talmadge Seminary.

Mr. Ford is connected with the Ford Motor Company in Atlanta, where he and his bride will make their home, following a brief wedding trip to Jacksonville Beach, Fla.

The marriage of this popular couple will be of interest to their friends throughout the south.

Safety Conference Is Planned

Miss Marion Telford, chairman of safety for the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, will conduct a safety conference on Thursday morning from 10 to 12 at 20th Street and DeLoach's tea room. Miss Telford, who has been attending the national convention at Miami, was requested by the fifth district parent-teacher division to visit Atlanta to outline plans for a safety program.

Plans for the conference have been made by Mrs. Byron Mathews, director of the department, and Miss Telford; Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, first vice-president of the district; Miss Kathleen Mitchell, state safety chairman, and Mrs. H. T. Harris, district safety chairman.

Invited to attend the meeting are district officers and chairmen, all council presidents, local presidents, directors of public safety departments in both councils and locals, safety chairmen and school superintendents in the fifth district.

Following the conference, a luncheon open to those attending will be held in the tea room. Reservations will be $55 cents and should be made with Mrs. Byron Mathews.

Mr. and Mrs. Dyer Honored at Supper.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Glenn Dyer, whose marriage was the outstanding event of recent date, were honored at a festive supper given by Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Palmour at their home in College Park on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Dyer was before her marriage Miss Mary Seymour Ward, granddaughter of Mrs. Thomas Crenshaw Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Dyer are making their home in Atlanta and are delightful acquisitions to the younger married contingent.

Forming the central decoration in the dining room was the wedding cake bearing the miniature bride and bridegroom, all of molded ice cream, which graced the buffet. The table, overlaid with a handsome linen cover, held as a centerpiece a beautiful arrangement of pink roses surrounded by ivy tapers. Garden flowers were used throughout the house.

Invited to meet the honor guests were Mrs. Thomas Crenshaw Sr., Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Crenshaw, Miss Jessie Ward, Miss Elva Crenshaw, Leroy Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Palmour were assisted in entertaining by their mother, Mrs. Oscar Palmour, and sister, Miss Mary Louise Palmour.

Mrs. Ritchie Chooses Biblical Theme for Valdosta Convention

Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

By BESSIE S. STAFFORD, Editor of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

VALDOSTA, Ga., May 7.—Mrs. H.

Ritchie, of Athens, president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs

holding the annual conclave here this weekend.

"Whither Have You Built a Road Today?"

The Biblical quotation may be found in the tenth verse of the 27th chapter of the first book of Samuel, in which Achish, son of Maachah, king of Gath, asked of David: "Whither Have You Built a Road Today?"

Around this keynote was built the administration proposed by Mrs. A. C. Conger of Bainbridge, second vice-president of the state body, whose duty it was to plan the program. The theme concerns modern trends in education, social and family welfare, government and world membership, and on these programs some of Georgia's outstanding personalities will speak on informative subjects.

Valdosta junior clubwomen will claim the spotlight in today's program, with Miss Wymondia Langdale, vice president of Wymondia juniors, extending greetings from her youthful group. It is to the juniors that (bless their hearts) the older clubwomen look for perpetuation of the whole club system, and the tuning of the members to a new efficiency. Indeed, club members are studying the principles of Mrs. Hubler prior to her leaving for Evansville, Ind. She was introduced by G. Seals Aiken. A sightseeing tour followed the luncheon. Miss Hubler was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Lindsey, of College Park.

President's Evening.

Wednesday evening is designated as President's Evening, when presidents of the 10 districts will meet to organize "Public Opinion at the Crossroads," and will give contrasting views upon present-day problems. Evidence that Georgia clubwomen are eager to inform themselves and take a stand upon vital questions will be shown in the controversial discourse.

Mrs. Albert Hill, first vice-president of the state club, will preside.

The fourth district president, Mrs.

J. C. Covington, of Macon, will argue the statement that certain relief measures are absolutely necessary.

The argument that relief measures are unnecessary will be discussed by Mrs. T. O. Tabor Jr., of Elberton, tenth district leader.

Pioneers' Blaze Trail.

How well these pioneer women blazed the trail and builded their roads is history in Georgia federation.

To quote Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, a pioneer past president: "Our yesterdays are useful only as they enabled us to do the work of today, in preparation of a good tomorrow. In other words, Mrs. Fitzpatrick believes that today's goal is the starting point of tomorrow."

Members of Mrs. Ritchie's administration will survey the highways of tomorrow's activities and point the way to the goal the present-day clubwoman should strive to attain. She believes that women's clubs are potent factors in opening up avenues of interest and service to women, and that community, state and nation are enriched by their high ideals of citizenship, and their signal efforts in its behalf.

Belonging to a woman's club offers the practical and inspirational will be favorably discussed by Mrs. Ivey Melton, of Dawson, the third district representative. Mrs. Pauline C. E. Glauert, fifth district president, who says she is not opposed to equal rights for women, but believes these rights should be parallel with the rights of men, in order to have a new set-up for women, takes the other side of the subject.

Believing that modern youth is at the crossroads, Mrs. C. E. Glauert, second district president, will contend that home influence is the stronger in shaping the character of youth. Mrs. W. A. Hill, of Calhoun, seventh district president, will argue that outside pressure has a much stronger hold upon present-day youth.

The fourth district president, Mrs. J. C. Covington, of Macon, will argue the statement that certain relief measures are absolutely necessary.

The argument that relief measures are unnecessary will be discussed by Mrs. T. O. Tabor Jr., of Elberton, tenth district leader.

First Business Session.

The first business session opens Wednesday in the Daniel Ashley hotel auditorium. The highlight of the session will be Mrs. Ritchie's address.

Tech High Dance.

The annual spring dance of the Horned Toad Club of Terh High will be held this evening from 9 to 1 o'clock at the Shrine mosque. The officers who will lead the grand march are: Thurston Willis, president; Walter Williams, vice-president; Charles L. Miller, secretary; Eugene E. Ellington; Edward Cox, sergeant-at-arms; Charles Foster, Rainbow correspondent.

Tickets for the gala affair may be obtained from T. L. Smith at 698 Piedmont Avenue, N. E. or by calling Walnut 7581. No tickets will be sold at the door.

Godwin-Zachary.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., May 7.—Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Watson, of Barnesville, announce the marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Godwin, to Ralph H. Zachary, of Atlanta, and Brevard N. C. The ceremony was performed on April 29 at the First Methodist church in Hendersonville, N. C.

RELIEVE PERIODIC PAIN

THIS medicine eases periodic pain and discomfort. It makes trying days endurable. Mrs. Garvin Burnett of Scots City, Kansas says:

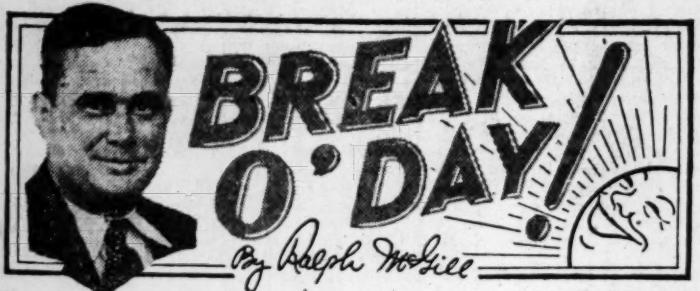

"I had such cramps I could hardly stand on my feet."

I had severe headaches, dizziness and blue spells. Your Tablets helped me wonderfully."

Sold at all drug stores. Chocolate coated. Trial size only 25 cents.

Lydia E. Pinkham TABLETS

Kelley Beats Little Rock, 5-2, for His Fifth Win of Season

"You," she said, with some vehemence, "are always writing about the care and the trouble and the labor some dumb football coach or baseball manager spends in developing some dumb football player or baseball boy."

"Well, let me ask you, did you ever try developing an iris?" She was about to tweak my ear. I looked around helplessly. Somehow I had managed to get into the building where the Atlanta flower show is being made ready for the public. I struggled for words.

"And you thought it was smart to write about the gal bosses in the Kentucky Derby and how they had no business trying to compete with the boy bosses. Didn't you?" Well, let me ask you. What idiot of a man can grow a bed of tulips?"

I wasn't quite sure how I got into the flower show building. But there I was. And it seemed that a great many of the fairest and best-known ladies of Atlanta were there.

But it didn't seem quite true. They were wearing work gloves. A diamond watch might show above the paint-smeared gloves but they were work gloves and they were being used for work.

And there were girls and grown-up ladies whose names occupy the headlines on the society pages who were wielding paint brushes, putting mortar between brick, white-washing brick walls, putting up rock walls, wheeling wheelbarrows and all that sort of thing.

SHADOW BOXING.

But the voice was speaking again. "I'll wager you don't even know what shadow boxes are?" said the vehement lady.

This was coming back to earth again. I had her there. So I cleared my throat and began:

"Shadow boxing is something in which boxer or prize fighter indulges while training. He boxes with an imaginary opponent, developing his footwork, wind and his punching. It also—"

"I knew it," she said. "I knew you didn't know what shadow boxes were. They are still figures."

"Pardon me," said I, "but a shadow boxer is never still. At least he is shadow boxing. You see, he moves about, moving his hands and punching at an—"

"This," she said accusingly, "is a shadow box." And she pointed to a box of flowers.

It still looked like a box of flowers to me. It wasn't shadow boxing at all but then there was no time to argue. A lady wheeled in a barrow full of stones. The wheel went over my foot. As I hopped back I ran into a forest. It was something like Birnam wood out of "Macbeth." The one which wrecked Macduff. It was moving. It developed that a cartload of evergreens was being moved in. When they had extricated me I felt like a Christmas tree. Except I was most emphatically not lit up.

FURIOUS WORK.

There was a lot of furious work going on. The show is one day away. After a load of brick had fallen on that other foot, we went to the other section of the show.

The ladies are just like the fighters or a football team before the big game. They are getting on edge. There were some glares. And a few remarks. Such as:

"Really, my dear, it is my chair. Oh, yes, I brought it the first day. And I haven't had a chance to use it all week. SOMEONE'S always in it..."

"Oh, no, my dear. I had those brick sent out yesterday. Yours must be somewhere else."

And so on. The big show is near. It begins Thursday. Today is the day before the big show. And it will be a show.

We went to lunch. They have fixed up a cafe, a very neat and foreign-looking cafe. There is something tropical about it. There are decorations on the walls.

There are bamboo canes and grass thatching. I felt like Robinson Crusoe. But his man Friday never was able to make such good food.

The ladies sat around and worried about their competitors. They worry a great deal more than did the Alabama football team on the eve of the Stanford game in the Rose Bowl. Or much more than Nellie Flag the day before she tried to run in the Derby.

REAL COMPETITION.

I had been asked out there by Mrs. William Healey, who is one of the officers, and the L. K. Starr publicity office.

And I will say this for the ladies. They are going to give Atlanta a great show. They have transformed the interior of the Peachtree street building, across from the Fox theater, into a veritable series of gardens. There are rock wells, old doorways with real iron grillwork and ivy; rock walls, brick walls, pools of lilies, flower shops modeled after those in Italy, modernistic shops; evergreens, shrubs and all sorts of flowers.

It seems that in the feminine world, when the trailing arbutus ups and arbutus and when the poppies begin to pop and the daisies begin to tell, that the competition makes a prize fight look like a tea party.

In other words while the ladies may appear as sweet as their flowers down underneath they are fighting like tigers to beat the lady with flowers like their own.

It is going to be a magnificent show. It will be the finest flower show in the southeast and a distinct credit to the city. Much better, I would say, than a dog show or a hoss show.

I am glad it is America and not Ireland. There is so much Irish confetti out there—old rocks, bricks and the like.

You must see the flower show. Thursday and Friday.

Emory Nines Play Decatur Netmen Two Games Today

Two games are on the schedule today in the intramural baseball league at Emory. The Juniors meet the Sophomores and the Freshmen encounter the Seniors this afternoon at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Emory courts.

The match with G. M. A. was interrupted again Monday with the Emory freshmen leading two matches to one. The scheduled match has been rained out twice and postponed on another occasion. The teams will play again on May 16.

In the completed contests of Monday's match, Paul Anderson, Emory, defeated Brown, G. M. A., 7-5; Matthews, G. M. A., defeated Fennick Jones, Emory, 6-4, 6-1; Tom Maher, Emory, defeated Horne, G. M. A., 7-5, 6-1; Holland, G. M. A., was leading Paul Wagner, Emory, 4-2, in the third set of their match.

There will be six singles matches and three doubles matches in today's contest with Decatur. The Emory freshmen have yet to win their first match.

CRONIN GETS PUP.

Joe Cronin, new Boston Red Sox manager, was presented with a Boston terrier pup on opening day.

AFTER 20 YEARS.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., May 7. (P)—It took W. H. Stewart 20 years to duplicate a golfing feat.

Using the same No. 5 he dropped the ball 150 yards into the cup on the sixth at the Swaner Country Club yesterday while playing in a threessome.

The caddymaster reminded Stewart that 20 years ago he had made the same hole in one.

DOUBLE VICTORY RETURNS CHICKS TO FIRST PLACE

Bearclaws Greer Holds Smokies to Four Hits in Finale

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 7. (P)—The Memphis Chickadees won two victories over the Knoxville Smokies today and went back into the leadership of the southern association. The scores were, 3-2 and 3-1.

A four-hitter attack in the first inning of the second game gave a handy two-run lead to Bearclaws Greer, who held the Smokies to four scattered hits.

BY FRANK MAC MILLIN.

NEW YORK, May 7.—(P)—Stocks gave ground today in a relatively quiet market in which turnover dropped well below the million-share mark of the previous session.

Many of the usual bell-wethers of the share list lost major fractions to a point or so each, although plus signs were not wholly absent in the closing list, and the oils and some scattered specialties were able to counter the general trend moderately.

Major commodities offered no encouragement to the equity market and both corporate and government loans were easy. Carrier lines, which had been good gainers after the rail pension decision of Monday, were generally soft and railroad shares pursued a generally hesitant course.

In the Chicago grain pit, the firmness of the previous session was more than wiped out. Corn finished 2 to 2 1/2 cents a bushel down, and wheat was 1 to 4 1/2 cents lower. Minor grains were weak. Cotton ended 30 cents lower to 10 cents higher a bale.

The soggy performance of stocks, Wall Street observers felt, gave some hint of liquidation on the part of tired and disinterested market technicians pointed out that the general level of stock prices has been in a relatively narrow trading range for more than a week without apparent ability to make further important progress, and that speculative elements may have become discouraged by this fact.

Volume Drops.

The volume of trading fell back to 813,210 shares in the stock exchange. As measured by the Associated Press average for 60 stocks the market's decline was 3 of a point at a time.

The general firmness in the price structure of crude and refined petroleum recently was reported in Wall Street quarters to be largely the result of good consumption, and some unofficial estimates in brokerage quarters set 1935's probable gasoline use at the highest on record. The market's failure to show interest in the stocks at advancing prices in today's generally poor market. Standard Oils of New Jersey and California, Seaboard Oil, Continental Texas and others advanced fractions to a point or so.

Sales Advance.

Spiegel, May Stern was a merchandising issue which found favor in its reversal April sales 42 per cent above a year ago, the volume of business in the first four months to 28 per cent. The stock was ahead well over a point at time but shaded its gains to fractions at the close.

Radio common held even in the face of an improvement in first-quarter earnings over last year. Mack Truck showed an increase in its deficit in the first four months of this year to $187,018 from $209,047 in the initial period of 1934.

The market appeared to derive no important inflationary stimulus from senatorial action on the soldier bonus question.

Among stocks which followed the major trend to lose fractions to a point or so were U. S. Steel at 31 1/8, American Chemical at 11 1/2, American Telephone at 11 1/2, Bethlehem Steel at 24 1/2, and U. S. Steel at 20 1/2. Some which bucked the current for fractional advances were Woolworth at 59, American Smelting at 43 1/8, American Tobacco "B" at 85 1/4, Chrysler at 41 1/8, General Motors at 30 3/8 and Montgomery Ward at 26 1/4.

HARDWARE GROUP OPENS SESSIONS

1935 Year of Opportunity, FHA Administrator Tells Retail Merchants.

The year 1935 was seen as a year of opportunity by J. A. Hall, of the Federal Housing Administration, Washington, D. C., one of the principal speakers at the opening session of the 1935 annual state convention of the Southern Retail Hardware and Implement Association which convened for a five-day meeting at the city auditorium.

Opportunities, he said, were presented to homeowners and all divisions of the construction industry, banks and financial institutions, as the result of the enactment of the National Housing Act.

Harold N. Coolidge, of the Atlanta firm of F. J. Coolidge & Sons, and representing the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association, spoke on "How To Sell More Paint in 1935."

He urged the hundreds of representatives attending the convention from Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee, to push their paint products as they were selling a product which protects, beautifies, insures health and enhances the value of the building or article to which it is applied. He outlined the present scope of home modernization work and described the work of the association he represents.

H. Kilpatrick, president of the Georgia Retail Hardware and Implement Association of Thomaston, will preside at the session at 9:30 o'clock this morning at which H. M. Swain, vice president of the Irwin Auger Bit Company, of Wilmington, Ohio, will speak on "Obligation of the Manufacturer to the Wholesaler and Retailer," and E. C. Crandall, president of the Simmons Hardware Company, St. Louis, Mo., will speak on "Teamwork With Win."

Harold P. Sheets, managing director of the National Retail Hardware Association, will be the principal speaker at the session which starts at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The exposition, which is being held in connection with the convention, has attracted hundred of interested visitors, and the exhibits will be an elaborate display on the stage by the Atlanta Stove Works. On the floor of the auditorium are scores of displays by manufacturers and retailers, including the latest 1935 "streamlined" horseshoe nails and the new over-and-under shotguns which have the two barrels one over the other instead of in the conventional side-by-side position.

"PETER PAN" PARK DEDICATION TODAY AT COLLEGE PARK

College Park residents are expected to turn out in throngs today and tonight for festivities attendant to the dedicating of the flood-lighted "Peter Pan" park at the Samuel R. Young school.

The program for the day, as announced by Alfred C. Broom, chairman of the executive committee of the College Park recreation council, is as follows:

2:30 o'clock: Juvenile band of the Atlanta Legion post, will march from the monument on East Haworth Avenue into the park.

5 o'clock: Consolidated high day program of the schools, to be presented at the park.

6:30 o'clock: Buffet luncheon honoring visiting guests.

8 o'clock: Auditorium of Samuel R. Young school. Dedication program. Dr. Wallace Rogers will deliver the dedicatory address. Music will be furnished by the College Park Civic orchestra augmented by members of the Atlanta FERA orchestra.

8 o'clock: At the park, the lights will be turned on and two softball teams composed of leading citizens under the names of the "Fats" and the "Leans" will christen the new floodlighted softball field, inaugurating the season of night softball.

Series of Monday night dances will be held at Segado's hall on Pine street between the Peachtree under the auspices of the Temple Sisterhood. Dr. Charles Sheldon Jr. and Miss Minna Hecker will be the artists.

Series of five psychological Bible studies will be given by Mrs. Rose May Ashby beginning at 8 o'clock Friday evening at 384 Main street.

S. W. Mrs. Ashby will exhibit to her class a brick she obtained from the ruins of Nebuchadnezzar's palace at Babylon.

John H. Hudson, chairman of the board of deacons of Gordon Street Baptist church, said yesterday that it was under the leadership of Dr. W. H. Faust, present pastor of the church, that the present building was constructed. He stated that Dr. W. M. Sentell had been away from the Gordon Street Baptist church six or seven years before the construction of the new building was begun.

Meeting of the Hapeville city council scheduled for last night was postponed because of the serious illness of Pauline Huie, daughter of O. M. Huie, mayor pro tem. The meeting will probably be held later in the week and at that time Mayor Quince Arnall, recently appointed assistant solicitor, general, will announce whether he intends to resign as Hapeville's mayor.

Imman Yards Baptist church monthly conference will be held at 7 o'clock tonight, after having been postponed from last week because of the death of Fred Whittaker, a member of the board of deacons. It will meet at 6 o'clock and the pastor, Rev. A. C. Holbrook, has announced a mass meeting for Thursday night at 7 o'clock, at which the conference will be held.
